III.閱讀測驗 (36~40 題，共 5 題)

Throughout the ages, death has been the only certainty. We will all, at some times, take our final breath, and as our heart beats for the last time, depart this world and go to the hereafter. As the world’s population has doubled to seven billion in only half a century, the environmental impact of disposing of the departed has become an increasingly important issue that needs to be addressed. Burning bodies in coffins requires significant amounts of energy and creates plumes of smoke that pollute the air, while burials in tombs take up valuable space in overcrowded cities. The Capsula Mundi project is an organic and biodegradable burial capsule that will turn the deceased’s body into nutrients for a tree. It is envisioned that thousands of memorial trees will replace cemeteries full of tombstones.

- 36. The word “certainty” in line 1 is closest in meaning to something ---.
(A) precious (B) sweet (C) successful (D) definite
- 37. How long does it take for the world’s population to become seven billion?
(A) 100 years (B) 50 years (C) 30 years (D) 10 years
- 38. What is the Capsula Mundi project?
(A) A project about selling trees. (B) A project about disposing of the dead.
(C) A project about medicine capsules. (D) A project about space in cities.
- 39. Which of the following attitudes toward burials in tombs does the passage suggest?
(A) Cherishing them. (B) Taking them for granted.
(C) Ignoring them. (D) Improving them.
- 40. What is the main idea of this passage?
(A) There are many interesting ways of burying the dead.
(B) Death is a scary thing.
(C) It is impossible to avoid death for human beings.
(D) A new, healthier way of disposing of the dead has been invented.
