People in America eat more ice cream than any other group of people in the world. Every year in the U.S., about 800 million gallons of ice cream are made. Even though ice cream is popular in America, it wasn't invented there. Over 2,000 years ago, rich people in Rome began eating ice with honey on top of it. This was the first ice cream. It wasn't until hundreds of years later that milk was added.

In the 1700's, ice cream was first taken to the United States. The first U.S. President, George Washington, loved the delicious treat. It is said that he would even eat it for dinner. One summer, he spent $200 on the dessert. Back then, ice cream was very expensive and only the rich could afford to eat it. In the 1800's, the price started to go down. The most popular flavor of ice cream is vanilla, with chocolate coming in second place.
